

CAMERA TRAPS

Whether you're setting one up in your back garden or using them in unexplored parts of rainforest, camera traps are a brilliant way of working out what animals are present in an area. With individual animals often having very slight differences between them, you can even work out how many of a particular animal are present. They are a brilliant tool for conservationists.

TASK:

We've set up a few camera traps and captured the images below. Can you identify the animals from the pictures?

Chimpanzee

Okapi

Pangolin

Bongo

Bushbuck

Red river hog

Golden cat

Answers: A: Bushbuck, B: Golden cat, C: Chimpanzee, D: Red river hog